Dear Parents and Carers,

World Book Day

After half term, we will be celebrating World Book Day on Thursday 4th March 2021. Even though most children will still be learning from home, we want to take this opportunity to come together and celebrate reading as a school as it is so important to us.

All of the children are invited to dress up as their favourite book character, whether they are in school or at home. The children at home will be able to post photographs of their costumes on Google Classroom and we will post some costumes from at home and in school on our Twitter page so that we are able to share this day remotely but still as a school.

The children in school will be taking part in some reading activities with their teacher but, to make sure that the children at home do not miss out, those doing home learning will also be given a range of exciting reading activities to do at home so keep an eye out for this on Google Classroom.

From Wednesday 3rd March – Friday 5th March there is a LIVE online webinar that the children can join from home. They will take place at 10.30am on each of these days to please visit the world book day website if you are interested in your child taking part.
